Report of the President

A GAIN your President has chosen to make his required address at the Annual Meeting in the form of a review of the activities of the past year and the prospects for the future, as well as the needs of the Society. The details of our activities will be left largely to the Director to cover in his report.

Some years ago the Society decided to limit its field to matters relating to the State of Connecticut. This has been a wise move in every way and has enabled the staff to do a better job through concentrating on a smaller range of subjects. The results have added to the standing and reputation of the Society. After a long period of standing still, we are now spoken of as one of the more progressive groups in our field. The credit for this belongs entirely to our Director and his staff, who have chosen wisely the subjects on which to concentrate for the year's program. Our exhibitions have attracted attention not only in Hartford but throughout the Northeast. They have in all cases featured subjects not previously given prominence. By them the Society has brought about a closer friendship with similar organizations who have reciprocated in a generous manner when we have asked them for aid in the matter of loans or other services.

The generous appropriation from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving, which we received for the preservation and restoration of our museum objects has been spent with noticeable results. During the year we have loaned several paintings to specialized exhibits. They would have attracted little notice and would not have been sought for had they not been recently cleaned as a result of this appropriation. Visitors have made frequent comment that few museums have their collections in as good order as we do and are envious of us.

We have been particularly favored by gifts of choice items this year. These have added much to our museum and to our library and will receive comment in detail by the Director.

Let me mention a subject which has been of particular interest to me personally. Recently the Society secured the original bills for the furniture for the Senate chamber in the Old State House. The price was high but the items were unique and had a particular appeal to me because of my close associations with that building for many years. They give a new light on the furnishings and appearance of the Senate chamber, which I hope can be given to the public after further study. If the result is as interesting as I believe it will be, it may serve to stimulate the restoration of this room to its former glory. In this case I believe that we will have the handsomest room surviving from the post-Revolutionary period. While the Society does not have the funds for this restoration, it may be a proper function for us to take the lead in bringing it about.

Finally, I will discuss our future needs. The building of an auditorium was forced on us by the increasing attendance at our meetings, which on several occasions has far exceeded the capacity of this small room. We cannot attract new members or retain older ones if we cannot accommodate them at our meetings. The new building will entail some expense for maintenance and a slight loss of income. We trust that our growth will make up for these.

We still suffer from the lack of a staff large enough to conduct our activities adequately. This is most noticeable in the matter of cataloguing. Each year we seem to lose ground because our accessions are more than we can catalogue. Two or three other staff members would do a great deal to relieve our Director of work which he should properly leave to others. At present he is not only serving as our executive but at times, I am sure, has actively carried out every type of work connected with the Society's activities, including the operation of the snowplow. We owe it to him to enable him to be a Director in the real sense of the word.

To me it has been a year of pleasure and privilege. Not only has the Society grown in membership, without any artificial stimulus, but there has been a particularly pleasing increase in interest by the members. I thank you for your support.

Report of Director

Mr. President and Members of the Society:

Introduction

By almost any standard, we have just concluded a most successful year. Nearly 11,000 people visited our building and sixty-four groups met here, with a total attendance of 4,175. Our eight lectures and twelve seminars were attended by 1,300 members and friends. Catered luncheons and dinners have been most satisfactory. Cash gifts amounted to more than $6,100 from the following donors: Charles S. Bissell, Morgan B. Brainard, Newton C. Brainard, Mrs. Newton C. Brainard, H. Bacon Collamore, Florence S. M. Crofut, Philip Hammerslough, Ward S. Jacobs, Henry R. Mallory, E. A. Moore, Charles Strickland, Edgar F. Waterman and Marjorie F. Waterman. Gifts to the library were appraised at $15,600, with several valuable lots still to be listed. Eight exhibitions were held in the 1st floor gallery and galleries 1 and 2. Special catalogues for the William Johnston and Staffordshire China shows were issued. A total income of $66,212.97 was received, with a return of 6.29% on the Consolidated Fund and 7.3% on the Hoadley Fund. Surplus Income was enjoyed in both General ($3,367.05) and Building funds ($5,743.91) which made possible wiping out the deficit of $3,776.83 in the Robbins Fund Income. This is a very pleasant situation due to prosperous business conditions, but cannot be anticipated every year. We badly need a manuscript cataloguer, and a museum curator, which would require a minimum of $6,000 additional income. What is minimum today may be radically changed tomorrow. Bequests included $2,500 from Alain C. White, and $55,535.58 from J. Coolidge Hills. From surplus, $5,000 was transferred to General Fund Principal. Added to these figures are $625 in admission fees, and $850 from Life memberships, which are added to the Publication Fund Principal; and $1,045.46 from book sales—$500, gift from Edgar F. Waterman to the Waterman Fund; and $487.51, final distribution of the Florence T. Gay estate—or a total added to endowment principal of $66,583.95. Membership continued its rapid growth with 204 admitted, a present total of 1,256, and a net increase of 154.

All committees faithfully performed their duties. As usual, we are indebted to the Program Committee for a fine series of lectures. They included:

- Edouard A. Stackpole: "Connecticut Whalers and Whaling"
- Roland Wells Robbins: "Through the Covered Bridge to Rural New England"
- A. H. Wilson: "What's in a Name"
- Loring McMillen: "Restoration Methods"
- Melancthon W. Jacobus: "Connecticut River Steamboats"
- Brooks Palmer: "Connecticut Clocks"
- William L. Warren: "William Sprats, Master Joiner"
- "The Colonial Printer" and "Flower Arrangements of Williamsburg," 16 mm. sound motion pictures in color, produced by Colonial Williamsburg

For our seminars, we are indebted to Paul Koda for his series on Antique Furniture. For the Collectibles series, our thanks are due to the following:

- Ralph VanC. Secord: "Books"
- Philip Hammerslough: "Silver"
- Charles E. Buckley: "China"
- Thomas D. Williams: "Pewter"
- Richard D. Moore: "Coins"
- Helen McKearin Powers: "Glass"

Never before have we enjoyed such publicity as appeared in local newspapers and Magazine Antiques. This has much to do with the success of our lecture and seminar series.

Library

Acquisitions and discoveries continue to steadily enrich our collection. One hundred and sixty-four volumes, 438 pamphlets, and 448 manuscripts were acquired during the year. Nearly 250 hours were spent unpacking. A hasty survey resulted in the discovery of a number of rare books. For example, seven editions of Baron Von Steuben's Regulations for the Order and Discipline of the Troops of the U.S. were found (Hartford, 1779, 1782; Philadelphia, 1779; Bennington, Boston and New York, 1794; and Albany, 1803). Other military books included:

WILLIAM BRETON, Militia Discipline, Boston, 1773

HUMPHREY BLAND, Abstract of Military Discipline, Boston, 1747; and Treatise of Military Discipline, London, 1753

WILLIAM WINDHAM, Plan of Exercise, Boston, 1771; Portsmouth, 1771; and New London, 1772

These were manuals used in the colonies before Steuben. Other rarities were:

BERNARD ROMANS, Concise Natural History of East and West Florida, New York, 1776

WILLIAM BLIGH, Narrative of the Mutiny on board his Britannic Majesty's ship Bounty, Philadelphia, 1790

Rules, Maxims and Observations of Government, Norwich (1774)

A Catalogue of Paintings, Prints and Medals in the Hartford Gallery of Fine Arts, Hartford 1825

JOSEPH SCOTT, United States Gazetteer, Philadelphia, 1795

By purchase, the following were acquired:

WILLIAM MEIGS HAND, T'Other Side of Ohio, Hartford, 1818

JOHN UNDERHILL, News from America; or a New and Experimental Discoverie of New England, London, 1638

[PHILIP VINCENT], A True Relation of the Late Battell Fought in New England, London, 1637

The gift of these last three volumes place the Society in select company with the John Carter Brown Library, the Henry E. Huntington Library, and the New York Public Library as proud owners of these rare books of such importance to Connecticut. Manuscripts discovered while unpacking:

Minor Heraldica ca. 1684

Other valuable books acquired at the Bates sale were listed and described, pages 14-21, in our Bulletin, Volume 19, and are here omitted.

Of the group purchased, T'Other Side of Ohio presented an interesting problem. Errors in bibliographies often make life miserable for librarians. Once printed, this misinformation will be repeated. Thompson's bibliography of Ohio (894) lists T'Other Side of Ohio by J. Oldfield, published 1863, which Sabin #57154 repeats. Wegelin's Early American Poetry #1071 corrects the date to 1818, still crediting it to Oldfield, but does not locate a copy. The Union Catalogue locates only two copies.

The summer of 1816 was very cold throughout New England, with frost in every month. Crops were about half normal. The following winter and spring were equally severe. The War of 1812 resulted in depressed business conditions. Many families found themselves near starvation and, to escape the feeling of despair which prevailed throughout the states, thousands of New Englanders moved west, especially to Ohio.

From available evidence, a J. Oldfield, about this time, published a "Poem in Three Cantos" which described Ohio in glowing terms. It was good propaganda to entice emigrants from New England. This poem is unlocated and does not appear in Sabin, Wegelin or any other bibliography available to us.

In answer to this poem by J. Oldfield, Dr. William Meigs Hand wrote T'Other Side of Ohio. According to S. G. Goodrich in Recollections of a Lifetime, who published the pamphlet in 1818, the author was well acquainted with the region. Dr. Hand was born in Middletown, October 6, 1789, married Susan Stocking, and died July 29, 1820. At the time of his death The Middlesex Gazette said he was "a man whose social virtues rendered him dear to all who knew him." North's History of Berlin, Connecticut says that Dr. Hand practiced medicine there several years and was the author of The House Surgeon and Physician, published anonymously in Hartford in 1818. Fifty Puritan Ancestors by Elizabeth

Todd Nash reproduces a delightful miniature in ivory of Dr. Hand.

Close examination of T'Other Side of Ohio reveals a list of arguments in favor of Ohio as they appear in the three cantos with quotes from Oldfield's poem. In the preface, Hand states: "Our author (Oldfield), although he seems to have utterly failed in his attempts at poetry; yet in his notes has accumulated facts which should not be lost to the people of New England."

For example, in the first canto:

"A New-England wife proposes a removal to a better country, to the pleasant land of Ohio, where are no north east winds, and no winters; where spring and autumn are for ever blended, and summer and winter for ever banished; where are no parish taxes; and no turnpike gates; where corn grows 100 bushels to the acre if hoed, 50 if not hoed, and 25 if not planted; where whiskey is cheap; and deer as plenty as lambs in yankee pastures; . . . and where pigs grow fat without feeding. . . ."

Step by step, the arguments in favor of Ohio are blasted with warnings of unpleasant conditions enroute and on arrival, sometimes humorously, always cleverly presented.

We were delighted to acquire by purchase, from the collection of A. C. Bates, a fine copy of T'Other Side of Ohio which lays this ghost to rest. It corrects the earlier errors and now has us searching for the original poem. It would be good to know whether T'Other Side of Ohio is only a clever satire, or whether there actually was such a poem.

Mrs. Edmund L. Warren of Kensington gave us the "Record Book of the General Railroad Commissioners, July 4, 1854-June 22, 1864." This was kept by Henry Hammond, great uncle of the donor.

The act establishing the Commission was passed in 1853. It was the Commissioners' duty to keep a record of all complaints and casualties and twice a year to examine the various railroads to see that they were kept in suitable repair. Penalties were provided for non-compliance with orders by the Commissioners.

It is hard for the present generation, accustomed to the large-scale operations of the "New Haven Road", to realize that there

The spring and fall inspections by the Commissioners resulted in interesting criticisms and recommendations. Many of the smaller lines were hampered by poor and inadequate equipment, such as the Norwich & Worcester R.R., whose engines "are not all of first class and some of them hardly sufficient for the purposes for which they are used." In one instance, the entire rolling stock consisted of three engines and eleven cars.

Emphasis was placed on the character of employees, especially mechanics, and the officials of Hartford, New Haven & Springfield R.R. assured the Commissioners that "no operatives are employed except those who abstain from the use of ardent spirits and are fully competent to manage the different parts assigned to them."

In most cases reports on the various lines were fairly satisfactory, but the Boston & New York Central R.R. seems to have been a thorn in the flesh. On October 28, 1854 the road was inspected and "found the recommendation of the Commissioners wholly disregarded." "They [the Commissioners] have examined a portion of your road . . . and find it in an unsafe condition for a high rate of speed. We therefore recommend that you adopt a rate of speed not exceeding 14 miles per hour for all passenger trains, running over that portion of your road located within the State of Connecticut."

Those of us who are familiar with New Haven's present station will be interested to learn that "the depot at New Haven is located in the bed of what was once the Farmington Canal. It is therefore necessarily low and dark besides being too narrow for the great amount of business at that point."

While there seem to have been no major accidents during the ten year period, a number of persons were injured or killed, mainly through their own carelessness. For instance, on September 14, 1854 "a lad named Freeman H. Keeler was killed at the Stamford Depot. He was in the act of jumping on the platform of the cars while in motion—was in the habit of this practice and had been frequently cautioned." Again, in July, 1854, "a man name unknown was found dead on the tracks of the Naugatuck Road near a flag station, supposed to have been killed by the train the evening previous. Supposed to have been intoxicated, as a rum bottle was found with him."

The volume carries us through a very important period in railroad development, recording the development of branch lines and increase in facilities for comfort and convenience of passengers. It should prove invaluable for future research in the history of transportation in Connecticut.

Museum

We are handicapped in the Museum without a curator. Significant gifts have been received, but few have been processed and properly stored while awaiting exhibition. This is an irritating problem which can only be solved by an addition to our staff. Just to arrange the exhibitions of William Johnston; Juvenile Books; Staffordshire China; Panoramic Views; Recent Acquisitions, Discoveries, Preservation, and Coins from the Society's collection severely taxed our staff. Such exhibitions must, however, be continued at all costs.

The Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation put in order a Winchester model 1873 rifle engraved by J. Ulrich. For this we are deeply grateful. This piece was made October, 1879 and was a presentation to General A. H. Terry, whose nephew, Alfred Howe Terry, presented it to the Society.

The Brinley family of Newington presented a splendid porcelain punch bowl formerly owned by Jeremiah Wadsworth. The case for the bowl was made by Samuel Kneeland and bears his printed label, dated August 14, 1786.

Dr. H. B. Haylett's gift of a milestone and Alexander Anderson's engraving tools was of great significance. Mrs. Haylett gave us a pair of glass communion goblets said to have been used in Groton as early as 1690. Other outstanding gifts have been described in the Bulletin.

Perhaps the most noteworthy accomplishment in the museum was the restoration made possible by the grant from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving. Twelve chairs were completed, a desk, table and, with the Seymour Museum Fund, a serpentine chest of drawers in the Seymour collection. Work of this type has long been needed and makes possible use of these articles which have had to be stored because of poor condition. We plan next year to have an exhibition of chairs, and so we have concentrated on them in order to have desired specimens for the exhibition in good condition. This grant also enabled us to reline and completely restore eleven paintings.

We are indebted to the following for lending specimens for our exhibitions: Dr. H. B. Haylett, Yale University Art Gallery, Dr. Arthur H. Merritt, American Antiquarian Society, New Haven Colony Historical Society, Wadsworth Atheneum, Joseph Hartman, Mrs. Edward A. Hart, Morgan B. Brainard, Philip Hammerslough, Jerome W. Blum, Rhode Island School of Design, Amherst College, Art Museum of the New Britain Institute, Lyman Allyn Museum, and Brooklyn Museum.

Editor

The expansion of the Bulletin from eight to thirty-two pages an issue has met with good response, with two of the four issues already out of print. This expansion was initially made possible with a grant from the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving. An anonymous gift a year ago has increased income of the Publication Fund to approximately $2,500. The estimated annual cost of the new Bulletin is $3,500. A surplus of $3,185.47 has accumulated which will permit continuation for two and possibly three years before the expense of the Bulletin is reflected in our budget.

The increase in size entails considerably more work, but Miss Kihn hopes eventually to be on schedule. A scarcity of contributors has increased her burden to the point where she not only must edit, but also write much of the copy.

Progress was made on Volume 29 and 30 of our Collections, now in galleys. Through the generosity of Henry R. Mallory, Genealogy of the Mallorys of Virginia was published. Its sale will augment our endowment funds.

The Publication Committee has approved the publication of Glenn Weaver's manuscript entitled "Jonathan Trumbull, Connecticut's Merchant Magistrate." This is a departure from recent practice and is the first interpretive writing published in some years. It is hoped this will provide a revolving fund for other such publications and that research in Connecticut history will be stimulated by the possibility of our publishing acceptable manuscripts.

Book sales have continued well, although our list is now quite out of date; $1,065.86 was credited to principal and $878.18 to income, or a total sales of $1,944.04.

Building

Although care and improvement of our building is taken for granted, much time and thought is devoted to it. During the winter our superintendent made numerous repairs and repainted laboratories and the lecture hall coat room. Walks from the parking lot were installed, some shelves for the 1st level were purchased, and a tablet in memory of Curtis H. Veeder was placed in the entrance hall.

During February it was noticed that humidified air escaped through the roof of the book stack and froze. This condition has since been corrected by sealing the wall and roof joint as well as venting the overhang. If allowed to continue, a serious rotting condition would have resulted.

A sign for the fire bell was designed and executed by Cyril Hawley, and when vandals destroyed the Elizabeth Street sign, it was replaced. Ordinary maintenance was continued and both grounds and building are proof of it. Several trees were lost during the hurricanes last September, but little evidence of their ravages remain.

Conclusion

We closed our report last year with the warning that to equal or surpass it in gifts and accessions would be next to impossible. In my opinion we have exceeded last year. It has reached the point where pride in the Society does not permit any slackening of efforts, or allow other institutions to acquire things we should have, no matter the cost. This was particularly illustrated with the response to our appeal for funds to use at the Bates sale. We not only secured contributions but, for the first time, the Standing Committee made surplus funds available for acquisitions.

The need of an auditorium has been recognized and one seating nearly 300 persons will soon be erected.

We still have unsolved problems, the most vexing of which are shortage of staff and lack of funds for acquisition purposes. Few apparently appreciate these problems and little progress has been made. The solution, of course, is in increased endowment which will come, but in the meantime we are harassed and embarrassed because we cannot absorb manuscript and museum acquisitions promptly.

We are extremely grateful that so many of our funds are unrestricted, and now that the Standing Committee has seen fit to allocate surplus funds for acquisitions, lack of specific funds for this purpose may no longer be a problem, depending entirely upon the size of our surplus.

Respectfully,

THOMPSON R. HARLOW, Director

ALLERTON C. HICKMOTT, Treasurer.

The account of the Treasurer with securities shown therein has been examined by me and found correct.

HAROLD G. HOLCOMBE,
SAMUEL P. WILLIAMS,
Auditors.

MEMBERS are proud that The Connecticut Historical Society is the largest and most important repository in the State for private records. We are pleased to accept responsibility for preserving family papers, business and political correspondence, diaries, journals and account books, Bible records, maps, files of newspapers, periodicals, prints, photographs and volumes written by Connecticut authors and materials printed in this State.

For the Museum, we are particularly interested in securing portraits, locally made furniture and fine specimens of the everyday articles of living which are so often worn out before anyone has thought of placing them in an institution. In this way we shall eventually have a complete picture of the changes in styles and customs in our State. Articles bearing labels of a Connecticut manufacturer are also highly desirable. The Acquisitions Committee will be pleased to consult with you concerning possible gifts or deposits.

Persons interested in becoming members of the Society may secure application blanks and descriptive literature by addressing the Director.

The admission fee of $5.00, which takes the place of the first year's dues, must accompany the application for membership. It is credited to the principal of the Publication Fund. Thereafter, annual dues may be $3.00, $5.00 or $15.00, depending upon class of membership. Associate Members, who must reside outside the State of Connecticut, pay $3.00 annually; they receive the Bulletin and Annual Report, but they may not vote nor hold office. Active Members pay $5.00 annually, and may vote and, if Connecticut residents, may hold office. Contributing Members pay $15.00 annually. All members may purchase publications at 20% discount, have access to the reading room shelves and the privilege of genealogical correspondence service. Information concerning special privileges of Life, Endowment and Benefactor Members may be secured upon application.
